

The thesis is focused on analysing a part of the boundary dividing the House of deputies from its environment by means of legislative career information. It aims to comprehend the changing membership structure of the House of deputies in five electoral terms from 1992 to 2006. The analysis is based on previous experience of the deputies of parliamentary, intraparliamentary and other public elections. The thesis segments the deputies primarily according to the party they represent.