

This master thesis is focused on attitude of pedagogues to the pupils with specific learning disabilities. Specific learning disabilities including their kinds are defined in the theoretic part. The main chapters engage in evaluation and classification, tolerance and motivation of the pupils with specific learning disabilities. There is a research in the practical part. I was held at three common secondary schools and three secondary schools for pupils with special educational needs.