

Diploma thesis „Journalists and Collaborator Alois Kříž" deals with life and work of this activistical journalist, which was due to his collaboration during Second World War sentenced to death in year 1947. Alois Kříž was bom in 1911 and he started his journalistic career in the middle of 30s as a sports-reporter in newspapers called Polední list and Národní noviny. But later he converted from sports-reporter to role of activistical journalist which was working for Nazi Germany: Kříž began to write political articles as an employee of journal Vlajka and his top-carrer started when he moved to protectorate Czech Radio; there he worked his way up to position of editorin-chief. Kříž was arrested for his collaborative activities immediately in May 1945 and after that he was inprisoned for almost two years; Kříž was sentenced to death and executed with another activistical journalists in March 1947.