

My bachelor's essays subject is Pastoral care in Army of the Czech Republic and here I'm going to aim to review duties of military priests in international missions. This work is divided into two parts: theoretical part and practical part. In the theoretical piece, I try to describe formation of religious service, how it developed over time, it's current form and activities and last but not least functioning of military chaplains in international missions. In the practical part you can find qualitative questionnaire survey among chaplains who participated in international missions, quantitative survey among soldiers who participated in the before mentioned international missions as well and interview with a soldier about life in missions and religious service. Work which I present here summarizes accesible information about Religious service of Army of the Czech Republic, which deal with religious service of the army and which aim to activities of military chaplains in international missions. Results of research, which was made in the practical part, confirm that presence of military chaplains in international missions is needed and sought-after, from point of view of soldiers as well as chaplains.
