

The object of the thesis - The influence of employment policy measures on employing persons with disabilities – is set of employment policy measures applying to employing persons with disabilities in the Czech Republic, and the influence of the measures on employing such persons from 1997 through 2007. The thesis describes development of the measures, analyses the measures costs, and considers the measures influence on the progress of the unemployment rate among persons with disabilities.