

Diploma thesis „The history of Hospodarske noviny The Economic Journal Daily“ talks about the development of the economic journal which used to be an “economic journal weekly” and then it was transferred to a daily journal. The described time of the thesis can be dated with the year 1957 when the communist concept of the economic magazine was firstly introduced and it lead to the origin of the Hospodarske noviny. The historical work finishes in the second half of the nineties when the economic journal slowly changed into a regular daily tabloid. The work is divided into two fundamental sections - after the basically most extensive part of the work that talks of the history of the magazine during the communist period there is also a part that describes the development of the newspaper after the fall of the communist regime. However, the lack of the dates such as the details of some important contracts made it impossible to analyze completely the ownership of the newspaper. But still this work also offers an overview of this problematic.