

The principal subject of this diploma thesis is agricultural production in Middle Age (6th – 13th Centuries). The first part treats general problems of agricultural production, the second part describe a course of agricultural year. For historical research I use the archeological finds, historical reports and iconografic sources. The interest concentrate on a describition and evolution of agricultural tools in the context of vegetable production in Middle Age.