

Diploma thesis „Senior social care services and their accessibility in the Czech Republic“ is dealing with the social care services for seniors and with their accessibility in the Czech Republic (in the context of demographic and social trends). The social care services accessibility-improvement was a prime motivation for writing this diploma thesis. The main goal is a reflection of current system in the senior social care services sphere, an identification of the barriers, suggestion of instruments refining the process of this system (in final consequences the accessibility of the senior social care services in the Czech Republic). Eight major problems in the senior social care services system with impact on the accessibility of the given services were identified and analyzed on the basis of interviews made by experts. The suggestion of the special and systemic instruments, which leads towards improvement of the social care system and primarily towards significantly better accessibility of the senior social care services in the Czech Republic, outcoming in the practical part of the thesis.