This thesis discusses two tools for simplifying the development process of XBW compression system. The rst is a library for writing up debug information suitable for the hierarchical structure of XBW modules. Which is a dynamic structure and can change over time. The second is a program which veries correctness of XBW functionality based on selected parameter combinations. Parameter combinations for testing are dened in a suitable manner - with regular expressions.