

This essay deals with transition to democracy in Mozambique, one of the poorest countries in the world. The main objective is to show, that well managed transition is not just a question of Southern Europe or South America and can be found also in Africa. The essay deals with postindependence Mozambique, non-democratic regime, transition to democracy and consolidation of democratic system.