

This work provides basic information about the peripheral facial nerve paralysis. It summarizes the historical data, epidemiological, etiopathological, diagnosis and research methods. In addition, an overview of treatments, but especially now focused on rehabilitation.