

The thesis is a literature and archive documents based summary of the settlement development at the Levý Hradec from the Neolithic to the movement of peoples period. It attempts to present structured information on the archaeological excavation on the site and is focused on their relevant contribution to the understanding of the prehistoric site settlement. It puts Levý Hradec into a broader context of the settlement in the region in the respective periods.