

The thesis „Press in a closed community of Soviet army community in Czechoslovakia in 1968 – 1989“ describes questions of periodical press on Soviet army basis in Czechoslovakia, its availability, selection and single titles. My aim was to sketch out basic principles of periodical press within the Soviet army community and implant the theme into wider historical and political context.

First part therefore traces the after-war history and reasons for Soviet invasion in 1968. Second part ensued from my research work among Soviet soldiers that were dislocated on Soviet army basis in Czechoslovakia mainly in 80's. It gives an insight into which papers and journals were available to soldiers and their content.

In conclusion I have evaluated the research outcome and outlined some possible further questions.
