

Abstract

The activation of people in the chronic stage of aphasia and their relatives from the point of view of the speech therapist

Mgr. Dana Vondrášková

Abstrakt: The topic of the thesis is the life of people with aphasia, mainly in the chronic stage. The theoretical section deals with the definitions of health, disease, wider conception of the chronic stage of the disease and in addition focuses on the quality of life of people with chronic aphasia. The practical section presents the research focused on a two-sided view of chronic aphasia. How this disorder is perceived by a person with chronic aphasia and by his or her partner. The survey was going in two stages to be able to follow the positive or negative changes.

Key words: health, disease, acute disease, chronic disease, confines to bed, chronic neurological disease, demonstration of the disease in time, aphasia, communication, quality of life, social environment, family, partnership.