

Annotation of thesis

Title: The Comparison of Current and Proposed Methodology of Diving Activities by The Police of the Czech Republic

Aim of thesis: Gathering and analysis of literature dealing with the current still valid internal direction of the diving actions within The Police of the Czech Republic, Závazný pokyn policejního prezidenta č. 83/1999 (ZPPP) and a newly-formed system of rescue and search diving called Emergency Response Diving International (ERDI). Brief explanation of the key terminology in terms of equipment, training, searching methods and qualifying groups and elaboration of both mentioned activities.

Having all available information and gathered data we compared both methods - Závazný pokyn policejního prezidenta č. 83/1999 and Emergency Response Diving International.

Method: The major method of the thesis was the analysis of current literature knowledge, work with literature and gathering of available information dealing with the current and newly-formed method of diving activities by The Police of the Czech Republic. Coming out from the analysis we created a final chart and for the comparison of both systems we used the method of scaling.

Result: Based on the literature research and elaboration of available information we created the comparison of both methods - Závazný pokyn policejního prezidenta č. 83/1999 and Emergency Response Diving International.

Keywords: ERDI, ZPPP, Response, Emergency, Training