

This bachelor's thesis focuses on a summary of activity the National film Archives in Prague, on his historical background and appearance in the past, and especially his current status and function. The main part is concentrate to the separations of NFA - how they cooperate together and complement each other in a flexible working archive unit, the questions of digitization and digital libraries NFA. The final part consist of the influence of archives on contemporary media policy.