

The bachelor thesis „Voyage dOutremer by Bertrandon de la Broquiere as a Historical Source“ deals with a travel account by the Burgundian diplomat and spy Bertrandon de la Broquiere reporting his pilgrimage to the Holy Land, Syria and the Ottoman Empire in 1432–1433. On the background of the later crusades ideological movement and the Burgundian court as its emphatic supporter the work examines sources and limits of the late medieval religious toleration and cultural openness.
