

Abstract

The aim of this work is to test the performance of multireference methods using the truncated virtual orbital space as a result when OVOS method is employed. As a guess function, the OVOS wave function is used for the calculations of the two-determinantal state of a quasi-degenerate system. The resulting energies are investigated for different truncation of the virtual orbital space.