

My work deals with the integration of wheelchair disabled persons into the society and it is focused on current situation in Czech Republic. In the first part of my work, consisting of four chapters handicap is defined (from the historical, cultural and psycho-social point of view). I particularly deal with main approaches of major society to handicapped people during the evolution of the human society to understand it nowadays. The second part, also consisting of four chapters I pay attention on some basic efforts and activities of this integrative process – for example educational system, social care a social services, employment support, transport possibilities, health care delivery and leisure time activities.
