

This graduation thesis is devoted to the issue of an integration of hearing impaired children into basic schools. This theme is examined from theoretical and practical side as well. Text of the thesis is complemented with data from Czech Statistical Office. It was pedagogues, parents and children that were addressed during the research, which was focused on the integration of hard of hearing children into schools. In the end, it revealed, that the realized integration was successful and positively assessed by all participants.