

Abstract

In my thesis I focused on non-native plant species in the Czech Republic, their distribution and subsequent disposal.

My thesis is divided into several parts, the first describing the general characteristics, history and consequences of plant invasions. In the next section I focused on the most dangerous species, with pointing out their origin, disposal and use. Finally, I analyzed natural history books and the information compiled in tabular form.

