

This thesis deals about tourism and impacts of tourism on the geographic environment. The main purpose is detection of impacts of tourism character, their concentration and intensity in protected area. In this research, author chose the region of the Křivoklátsko protected landscape area. Other aspect this thesis is detection of attendance evolution in confrontation with the proposed Křivoklátsko national park.