

TITLE:

Development of soft motoric and grafhomotoric by persons with special needs for education

AUTHOR:

Dana Chocholáčová

DEPARTMENT:

Department of pedagogy

SUPERVISOR:

Doc. Ing. Jitka Vodáková, CSc

ABSTRACT:

The goal of the bachelor thesis is to find out influence of selected practice activities on development of soft motoric and grafhomotoric by people with mental retardation and people with poliomyelitis. Theoretical part introduces readers to selected kinds of disabilities, their causes and manifestations. The bachelor thesis describes development of soft motoric and grafhomotoric and their development through practice activities, specifics of personality with mental retardation and their importance for vocational education and occupational therapy. Practical part describes to readers progress of research and evaluation of basic group and case study, control test evaluation and if these selected practice activities have any influence on development of soft motoric.

KEYWORDS:

Soft motoric, grafhomotoric, laterality, mental retardation, poliomyelitis, practice activities.