

This work deals with the breakdown of government bonds yields on the risk components. More specifically it deals with cost of liquidity capital, loss of illiquidity and expected default losses. In the beginning we explain the characteristics of bonds, particularly government bonds, further we deal with some of elements which may break up the government bonds yields. Finally, we implement the interest rates of bonds of three EU member states.