

Abstract

The presented thesis is called Community property. It deals with property relations between spouses as well as relations between spouses and third parties. The work deals with the characteristics of community property of spouses. It refers primarily to the current legislation; however, one part is dedicated to the historical development of the institute because of its importance. The thesis tries to outline issues that may arise between the spouses while applying their rights and obligations, but also simultaneously to find appropriate solutions. All this using the available specialized sources such as literature, law, or findings of the expert public.