

Summary

The Bachelor thesis presented deals with an overall assessment of the Great Moravian burial ground in Rajhradice (located in the rural area of Brno), which was excavated in the years 1952 to 1953 and 1975. The work is based on a catalogue of this burial ground and the neighbouring one in Rajhradice published by Čeněk Staňa. It follows individual aspects of funeral rites at a necropolis and evaluates the inventory of the graves. Based on the findings, the work dates the burial ground and puts it into context of all Great Moravian burial grounds.
