

This bachelor thesis deals with the circumstances, location and activities of the alliance Národní jednota pošumavská, which worked in Pisek from 1884 till the end of the Great War I. It puts its extensive activities in the broader context of a social life and examines its influence on the political, cultural and social life of the Czech people in the south of the Bohemian region.