

This work is focused on the analysis of divorce rate and the marriage patterns of divorced spouses in the Czech Republic after 1992. The work analyzes changes in the structure of brides and grooms according to their age, education and time elapsed from breakdown of previous marriage. Attention is also paid to differences in the residence, nationality and citizenship of the spouses in the time of the marriage, too.