

The purpose of this work is to outline the progress of nursing, nursing care and nursing education. In my thesis I compare some chosen aspects of offering nursing care at internal, neurological and surgical clinics and at the University Hospital Motol in comparison with Regional Hospital in Decin. The work is divided into two parts, theoretical part in which I focus on a brief description of the history of nursing, progress of chosen elements of offering nursing care, and nursing education and empirical part, which includes research focused on the progress of nursing in view of paramedical staff.
