

Abstract

My goal in this work is to analyze relations of terrorism and multicultural world taking into account the role of media. As a result of globalization and modernization the world is connected much more than it was in the past and so mixing of different cultures, ethnics, nations and religions brings beside many positive sides also spread of hatred against the others. There were many cases in which the attackers were immigrants that have been living in the country for several years but yet haven't been able to blend into the major society. Terrorists of these days tend to scare and paralyze society to the greatest extent. For this purpose they use the power of mass media that spreads the news all over the world through the newest technology.

In my work I have used theoretical analysis of publications from the fields of terrorism, history, anthropology, politics, media and also newspaper articles that refer to significant terrorist attacks from last ten years.
