

We summarize and present recent results in the field of infinite matroid theory. We define and prove basic properties of infinite matroids and we discuss known classes of examples of these structures. We focus on the topic of connectivity of infinite matroids and we link some matroid properties to connectivity. The main result of this work is the proof of existence of infinite matroids with arbitrary finite connectivity, but without finite circuits or cocircuits.