

This bachelor thesis is focused on Emil Hácha during the period of the so called Second Republic, that existed between October 1938 and March 1939, while he was the President of Czechoslovakia. The goal of this bachelor thesis is not only to describe the steps he took in the time of constant threat by the neighbouring Third Reich, but also to capture the mood and atmosphere enveloping the country on the eve of the Second World War.