

Abstract

In these thesis the children's daily care up to three years of age in the Czech Republic is going to be described. The thesis consist of two parts – practical part and theoretical part. In the theoretical part, the classical children's home care in its first three years of life and also the possibilities of an institutional care are described. There will be terms as the day care centre, the kindergarten and private alternatives of care, defined. The practical part is composed from the quiz. The target of these theses was to find out the population's knowledges about the forms of daily care in the Czech Republic and also their opinion about the possibilities of daily care in the Czech Republic. Other parts of the practical part are results, interpretation of the results and the discussion.
