Bachelor thesis is conceived as a case study, that depicts the life and development of the client from the Integrated Social Service Centre Odlochovice. The text is devoted to the visual and mental disability in the interaction between each other. It further describes the social services for people with disabilities and two specific devices that provide these services. The next part deals with the client itself, its development in the city, the environment in which he lives and the services they use. At conclusion of the thesis are recommended mobility aids, which would facilitate the client to partially compensate for the absence of vision. The aim of this thesis is to propose appropriate compensatory aids and determine whether the Integrated Social Service Centre Odlochovice is able to provide adequate special educational care and support for persons with visual disabilities.
