

Abstract

The aim of the thesis “Legal regulation of forest protection“ is to summarize the main instruments of the Czech law to ensuring the protection of forests. The thesis focuses mainly on current forest legislation in the Czech Republic. The main purpose is to ascertain whether the current legislation of the protection of forests is efficient and sufficient. The thesis is divided into nine chapters. The first part of the thesis defines the forest in general, its functions and questions of its protection.