

Bachelor's dissertation Abstract:

The focus of this Bachelor's dissertation is on the options of objective assessments of apraxia. With the objective assessments can we determine the impact of apraxia. The main focus of this dissertation is to find options of objective assessments of apraxia. This dissertation includes theoretical and practical sections. The theoretical section focuses on the basic information about brain damage. Further chapters of the theoretical section describe the apraxia, its definition and classification. There are also described specific tests for apraxia. The practical section is based on the detailed description of one of the tests – Naturalistic action test.

Key words:

Brain damage, ideational apraxia, ideomotor apraxia, measuring apraxia, standardized testing methods of apraxia, naturalistic action test