

Abstract

This bachelor's thesis introduces rhythmic gymnastics. The rules, phases of sports training, factors affecting sports performance and definition of motor abilities are presented in theoretical part of thesis. Practical part concerns on solving the question of level of motor abilities in different age categories of rhythmic gymnastics competitors, due to the phases of training. The measurement was performed with the competitors from gymnastic club SK MG Slovan Plzeň.