

This diploma thesis discusses a legal regulation of veterinary care. The field is discussed in four main chapters which fully describe the sphere. The thesis gives an account of international, European, and Czech legal norms, with a notable accent of current issues of the sphere. The thesis further discusses the development of veterinary medicine in both the World and the Czech Republic and also the requirements and conditions of this service.