One of the protocols used for communication between coaches inside a train is the National Train Bus (NTB). The result of this work is support for diagnostics on the NTB – mainly watching the process data-flow and monitoring of chosen variables distributed along the train, with consideration to their character and validity.