This thesis "Zootherapy and its utilization in practice" deals with zootherapy, its methods and using animals like healers and companions. The thesis is divided into two parts, theoretical and practical. In the first part I write about zootherapy as a whole and its forms. In the practical part you can find the survey. The main goal of this thesis is to provide information about zootherapy and spread its findings to all who are interested in this issue. Further I would like to find out whether the zootherapy has a positive effect on people who use it. In annex you can find enclosed information about communication with handicapped clients and stories of clients who use the therapy.
