

Diploma thesis „Functional literacy among adolescents“ discusses the components of functional literacy.

The theoretical part of the thesis briefly introduces the development of functional literacy. It shows the functional literacy, and how its properties affect the individual. It describes each specialization components of functional literacy and represents social views in defined areas of the company (community). It also states components of functional literacy, describes their active participation in the field of functional literacy and the effect on the overall formation.

It focuses on the potential negative impacts of these components.

In the research, part of the thesis presents the conclusions of the survey.