

In the theoretical part the author scrutinizes some secondary literature sources which deal with word formation in German language, defines terms and compares the informations stated in the publications. In the practical part she will search for the substantive compounds in newspaper articles, which are printed in specific sections of reputable and tabloid press. She compares in which kind of periodicals appear substantive compounds more often.

Key words:

Lexicology, substantives, compounds, journalistic texts