

Abstract:

The thesis presents the results of evaluation of archaeological finds from the two settlements in Písek (site “nemocnice”) and Topělec. Both settlements are dated to the Late Bronze Age. With respect to the fact that only Late Bronze Age sites of smaller extent have been evaluated and published in South Bohemia so far, the studied settlements offer a more complex view on the composition of ceramic finds in this period and region. Both sites provide ceramic finds analogous to those from Central and West Bohemia, however, they do not differ significantly from other South Bohemian sites.
