

Abstract

Title:

Behaviour in various tennis games situations by men and women

Objectives:

The aim of the work is to compare two surfaces and two sexes and to learn what differences there are and what are the ways of getting points in singles.

Methods:

The analysis was based on observation of selected tennis matches during Wimbledon 2014 and French Open 2014. A quantitative method was used - lines used as a recording tool. The results were recorded into prepared recording sheets. The analysis of all matches itself was done by a descriptive method.

Results:

The results inform about differences in styles of play between men and women on grass and on clay. From those differences other tactical distinctions between men and women follow. Also, the results show differences caused by the variety of surfaces.
