

Annotation

The topic of my work was The Czechoslovak institutions and repatriation after the First World War. I describe the years 1918 – 1923 in Central Europe, specifically in Czechoslovakia and in other new succession states after Austria-Hungary. My work is divided into 4 different chapters, introduction and conclusion. The first chapter describes the First World War and its consequences for Central European region. It also describes economic problems in succession states, the changes of territory, situation in Czechoslovakia after 1918 and it characterizes population in key countries (Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria and Poland) for my topic. The second chapter is focused on Czechoslovakia. It shortly explains reasons of emigration and immigration of Czechs and Slovaks before and also after the First World War. It describes factors which have big influence on repatriation in Czechoslovakia (for example land reform). The third and fourth chapters analyze materials from archives. They present a lot of very concrete examples of repatriation process (lack of housing, problems with citizenship, unemployment). It points at importance of state executive institutions for repatriation process. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the Ministry Social Security and Employment have the most important position and big influence in this process. My work deals with repatriation of countrymen into Czechoslovakia from 1918 to 1923 from view of Czechoslovak institutions and their processes and activities connected with repatriation.

Key words: the First World War, Austria-Hungary and their succession states, Czechoslovakia, repatriation, Central Europe, formal and informal institutions, population, emigration and immigration