

Abstract

The present thesis deals with the image of the First Crusade and its participants portrayed by sources of eastern origin. It focuses mainly on Alexias and the personality and motivation of its author Anna Komnene. It studies her point of view in the context of situation of Byzantine Empire and general relations between the west and the east in the beginning of the era of Crusades.