

Abstract

Title: Comparison of interest in sports activities between high school students in Prague and in Karlovy Vary region

Objectives: The aim of this thesis is to find and compare the interest in sport between two groups – high school students in Prague and Karlovy Vary region. Furthermore, the aim is also to find out the reason why students do sport or why students have even no interest in sport. Another objective is to find and compare the way how students in both regions spend their leisure time. Lastly, sports conditions were verified in both regions.

Methods: Interest in sports activities has been investigated by using a questionnaire survey. The questionnaire was specially created for this research.

Results: Research has shown that the level of sport activity is higher by students from Karlovy Vary region than by students from Prague. Although the conditions for sports activities are worse in Karlovy Vary region than in Prague, students do sport more often and doing sport is more popular in comparison with other leisure time activities.
