

Abstract

Liberal democracy is a representative government that combines the principles of liberal and democratic. The Bachelor thesis will be devoted to conservative criticism of the political system, which in the days of the Weimar Republic in German environment was formulated by Carl Schmitt and Ernst Jünger. The Weimar Republic for the time of its functioning, in the period after the World War I and in the 30's, was under pressure from the extreme left and the right, immediately threatened its existence. On this criticism of the serious crisis of the state responded Carl Schmitt in his work. The key work in this regard is the Concept of Political, which is reviewed by Ernst Jünger. This creates a critical dialogue framed by the German Conservative Revolutionary movement, criticising fragile democracy of the Weimar Republic and the leveling collectivism, the triumph of the masses of the individuals and the common man dictatorship, and the pluralism, which is a direct consequence of the deformation and degradation of parliamentarism.
