

This work identifies several concepts of space in both its literal and abstract meaning and it applies them to Julius Zeyer's prosaic works. It characterizes his poetics and then it uses categories of the narrative-space form of textual spatiality in order to analyze the setting, the space frames, and the universe of Zeyer's works. In the end these thesis is related to chronotope theory.