

Summary

This diploma thesis focuses on the methodological and practical approach to teaching violin at the music school. The chapters are divided chronologically into seven years of teaching first grade at the Music School. For each year is given a brief methodological analysis of instructive literature. The work includes a methodological section that deals with technical problems violin and describes the training.